Sugar Houses of New England
Compiled by Jeff Folger of Vistaphotography

I blog on many subjects but my passion is for fall foliage in New England. You can find me on the following websites and blogs.
My Art and Stock photography of New England
My Exploring New England fall foliage website
My scenic New England travel blog

I’ve searched the web for what I hope are current listings of active Sugar Houses.
I have put the maple producers association for each state and contact info so you can visit their websites
I also make no claims as to photography permissions. Please contact the owners prior to arriving so you know whether they will allow you to photograph them during production.
You might also offer free rights to any good pictures you have taken because like farmers everywhere they could use the help.

This is especially true if you make money creating pictures on their property.
If you have any questions my email is jeff.foliage@gmail.com
